

From: vwilson@seanet.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/17/01 9:26pm
Subject: Re: A Strong Disagreement...

To Whom It May Concern (The United States Department of Justice):

Quite frankly, I am strongly disappointed with your terms of settlement with Microsoft.

Your conditions are nothing more than an incredible slap on the wrist for the completely diabolical corporate behavior, Microsoft has clearly exhibited.

As well, many citizens, consumers, and businesses that are a great part of the high tech industry were considerably disgusted, as your result of lack of appropriate action.

Thousands of jobs, products, and new markets have clearly suffered as a result of Microsoft monopolistic pillaging.

Without equivocation, the applicable and suitable consequence would have been either the complete breakup of the behemoth, or a requirement that Microsoft only produce the basic Operating system- no internet browser, email, and media player.

For this would truly allow an open and free marketplace.

I, just as several others, are beginning to question what is the true purpose of having a Department of Justice - when it is apparent, the division is completely ineffective and worthless?

The DOJ needs be a part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Wilson